

The Yorkshire Philosophical Society Bicentenary Dinner 2022

*It is our great pleasure to invite you to our Bicentenary Dinner on Wednesday 7 December 2022
at The Mansion House, St Helen's Square, York*

To celebrate the bicentenary, we will gather in the Mansion House, which will be beautifully decorated for the season. Beginning with an included drinks reception in the ground floor dining room, we will then move to the first floor State Room to take our seats at table and enjoy a three-course meal provided by Poppy Caterers.

We are delighted to announce that distinguished geologist Professor Phil Manning, from the University of Manchester, will be our guest speaker. Professor Manning was Curator of Geology at the Yorkshire Museum and a YPS Trustee earlier in his career.

Other special guests will be announced shortly, and we do hope you can join us in December for this unique occasion.

Kind regards,

Catherine Brophy (Chair)

RSVP by 7th October

The format of the evening is overleaf

Format of the Evening

Dress code

Dinner jackets or lounge suits for gentlemen, evening dress/trousers or cocktail dress for ladies.

Programme

Members are welcomed from 6.30pm. There will be a drinks reception in the ground floor dining room with a complimentary drink courtesy of the Chair and Trustees of the Society.

Dinner will be served on the first floor at 7.15pm. A seating plan will be placed near the entrance to the room. Further drinks may be purchased at the bar table. Water will be on each table.

To give members more opportunity to speak to other members, a pre-arranged couple of people from each table will move to other tables before dessert. This will be announced on the evening.

Coffee and tea will be served at the end of the meal.

The Chair will give a brief address and will introduce our guest speaker.

Proceedings will end at approximately 10.30pm.

The Dean Court Hotel, Duncombe Place is nearby and rooms can be booked on 01904 625082
